Tttttt Numb. 3641.

The Daily Courant.

Monday, June 15. 1713.

London, June 15.

On Saturday arrived the Mails due from Holland and Flanders.

From the Paris Gazette, dated June 17.

From the Camp at Spire, June 6.

THE Marſhal de Villars arrived at Strasbourg the 28th of May, and immediately he diſtributed the Troops which he found in Alſace into all the Country that lies between Haguenau and Lauterbourg. Afterwards, he ſent them ſuch Orders, that in one Night the Army drew together forming it ſelf in Marching. The 3d of this Month, he left Strasbourg and came Poſt to Fort-Louis, where the Chevalier d' Haſelt had been ordered to be ready at the Head of the Iſland of Selingen on the other Side of the Rhine, over-againſt the Fort, with a Body of Horſe and Foot and ſome Cannon. The Marſhal de Villars took divers Marches, advancing towards Raſtat, to induce the Enemy to believe he had a Deſign on the Lines of Etlingen; but at the Cloſe of the Evening he went Poſt to Lauterbourg. He ſent before 28 Squadrons, 15 Battallions, and 1000 Grenadiers, commanded by the Count de Broglio Lieutenant-General, M. de Maupeou Major-General, and M. Chaſtenet Brigadier. Then he took the ſame Route at the Head of the Army, with the Count du Bourg, the Marquis de St. Fremont, Count Albergotti, the Marquiſſes de Vivans, de Coigny and de Monperioux Lieutenant-Generals, and the Marquis de Broglio and M. le Guerchois Majors-General. Mean while the Count de Broglio arrived the 4th with the Vanguard at 11 at Night at the Cauſey of Philipsbourg of which he took Poſſeſſion, Prince Eugene being encamped under that Place with the Archduke's Troops; ſo that this Project could not be executed without great Secrecy, and extreme Expedition. This was ſo great, that ſome Battallions marched 16 Leagues in 20 Hours; and ſufficient Praiſe cannot be given to the Courage and Ardour of the Soldiers in ſo violent a Fatigue, without making any Halt but only for three Hours. The Army is encamped in a very plentiful Country, where the Soldiers refreſh themſelves quietly. They have before them Philipsbourg and Spire, and Landau behind, which by this Means is inveſted. They may extend themſelves throughout the Palatinate on this Side of the Rhine, into the Biſhopricks of Spire and Worms, and into the Archbiſhopricks of Mentz and Trier, where is Forrage enough to ſubſiſt the Army during the whole Campaign. The Enemy had a great many more Horſe than the Marſhal de Villars, who had but 60 Squadrons, but Cavalry come in to him from all Sides, and the Marquis de Vivans is already arrived with part of the Army from the Moſelle.

From the Paris Letter, dated June 16.

Paris, June 16. The laſt Advices from Alſace, which are of the 9th Inſtant, tell us, that the Troops which were on the Sarre and the Moſelle continued to march towards Landau, whither the Marſhal de Bezons was already gone, in order to make the neceſſary Diſpoſitions for the Siege of that Place. Mean while 'tis not believed that a formal Siege will be made, but that the Place will only be blocked up till Want of Proviſions oblige the Garriſon to ſurrender. As we are no longer in fear of Excurſions by Parties from Trarbach, ſtrong Garriſons are left only in Metz and Saar-Louis, to keep the Enemy's Country in that Neighbourhood under Contribution. Troops were continually arriving, and the Marſhal de Villars's Army with that of the Marſhal de Bezons conſiſted already of 100000 Men, beſides 15 or 16000 which are drawing together near Briſac to raiſe Contributions likewiſe on that Side; ſo that all our Troops ſubſiſted almoſt intirely at the Expence of the Enemy's Country. The Germans boaſt, that they ſhall ſhortly have at leaſt as great a Number of Men in the Field as we; they give out likewiſe that our Magazines are not ſo well ſtored as we pretend; but we ſuppoſe they talk rather what they wiſh than what they think; however we ſhall ſoon teach them that they are miſinformed of the State of our Affairs in Alſace, and Prince Eugene ſees himſelf once more the Bubble of the Marſhal de Villars. The Chevalier de St. George, who was at Bar le duc the 30th of laſt Month, returned the 7th Inſtant to Commerci, whither the Court of Lorrain came the ſame Day there to take for ſome time the Diverſions of the Seaſon.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 20.

From the Imperial Camp near Muhlberg, June 13. The Enemy have ſtill their Head-Quarters at Spire; and we learn that Yeſterday the Marſhal de Bezons cauſed Landau to be inveſted, in order to the beſieging it in form, propoſing to reduce it in 35 Days after opening Trenches, notwithſtanding the numerous Garriſon in it. The Marſhal de Villars who commands the Army of Obſervation, has ſent ſome Troops down by Landhoven near to Manheim; and according to the Report of ſeveral Deſerters he intends to lay a Bridge there over the Rhine, as well for laying waſte the Country on this Side of that River, as for hindring us from receiving any more Convoys by the Rhine, from Mentz and elſewhere: But Prince Eugene takes all poſſible Precautions for diſputing the Enemy's paſſing the Rhine; and for that end he has poſted a greater Number of Troops along that River down below Manheim, and has cauſed Intrenchments to be made there with Redoubts at proper Diſtances.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated June 20.

Philipsbourg, June 13. The Imperial Army continue in their former Poſts on this Side of the Rhine. 'Tis reckoned that the Regiments ſtill expected, will be hereabouts within 5 or 6 Days; and then our Army will paſs the Rhine, to endeavour by all Means poſſible to prevent the Loſs of Landau. The Enemy's Army are intrenching themſelves very ſtrongly on the Spierbach.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated June 20.

Cologne, June 16. The Troops of Hanover wait only for Orders to march towards the Upper-Rhine, as do alſo thoſe of Pruſſia. Thoſe of Wirtemberg are ſpeedily expected in this Neighbourhood, in their Way to the Imperial Army. Baron Kirchner is with the Landgrave of Heſſe-Caſſel at Slangenbad, to ſollicit ſome Troops.

From the Amſterdam Courant, dated June 20.

Paris, June 16. Our Court have ſent 50000 Piſtoles by the Duke of Lauzun to the Chevalier de St. George at Bar le duc, who having for ſome time had certain Engliſh Miniſters about him while he was here, has begun to ſhew ſome Coldneſs for the Ceremonies of the Romiſh Church. Prince Ragotski hearing that the Prince of Conti and the Duke of Bourbon will ſet out the end of this Week for the Army on the Upper Rhine to ſerve as Volunteers, and be preſent at the taking of Landau, he has intimated to the King his Deſire to go with them, but his Majeſty hath not thought it proper. Some are of Opinion that he is deſigned for another Service, namely, to go to Hungary and excite new Commotions againſt the Emperour; the rather, becauſe his Penſion is augmented to 50000 Livres a Month, half of which is

is paid him by M. Des Maretz, and the other in Assignments on the Town-house; and it has been recommended to the Spanish Court to allow him a like Pension.

Hague, June 20. 'We have no Account yet that 'the French have evacuated Luxembourg. Letters from the Camp at Muhlberg of the 12th Instant advise, that the Troops of Wirtemberg were 'on the March towards Prince Eugene's Army, 'but that those of Hesse-Cassel yet delay marching: The same Day they had an Account that 'Landau was invested, and that 'twas reported in 'the French Army that the Duke of Orleans was 'coming to it.
